Odd Electric Lighting System.

On the Danish Island of Sjælland there is an electric lighting system which is driven by a windmill. The wheel is 46 feet in diameter, and is supported by a tower 43 feet high. The area of the blades exposed to the wind is 340 square feet, and with a wind blowing at the rate of 23 feet a second the mill will give 3.6 horsepower. The speed is then 24 revolutions a minute. Current is supplied to 378 incandescent and six arc lamps, besides several small motors.

LIKES THE SPIRIT OF LOCAL DEALERS; OFFICE OF SEALER

Chief State Inspector of Weights and Measures Visits Mayor and Officials on Matter of New Office.

Commending the spirit of the local grocers and dealers regarding their compliance with the new law on weights and measures and at the same time making some suggestions to the dealers to secure better service, Fred P. Downing, chief inspector of weights and measures, was in the city today to investigate the conditions here.

Mr. Downing visited the office of the mayor and other officials to ascertain what was being done by the city toward appointing a city sealer of weights and measures under the provision of the new law. He emphasized the fact to the mayor that the officials to be named after taking the civil service examination November 11, should have an office and sufficient salary to devote his entire time to the duties of sealer and inspector, which latter capacity it was necessary for him to perform.

Mr. Downing recommended that the council take immediate action on the matter of supplying the sealer-to-be with the equipment which is necessary for the office which is stated with cost in the neighborhood of $200. The council office for inspection, after which it is ready for use in the city.

The inspector today called attention to a number of matters which should be understood. He stated that the fact that the farmers who sold goods in the city sealer and must obey the new law in all respects. He stated that the only methods of dry measure used by the law were measure, weight or count. This did away with the use of such miscellaneous articles of measure as the bag, tub, basket, or wash-tub, which, it is alleged, are being used by farmers in their sale of goods.

Another matter emphasized was that bottomless measures were prohibited, and that liquid measures cannot be used for dry measure or as a scoop.

The state is preparing a pamphlet of instructions for the city sealer which will be ready for distribution soon. Some of the suggestions which will be of value to that official are also interesting to the public and are given below:

Liquid Capacity Measures.

Liquid capacity measures must be made of metal, glass, enameled ware or composition.

The measure should be such that the capacity is measured to a definite mark or edge.

When a tap is provided, the tap should completely empty the measure without tilting.

When a lip is provided, the capacity should be taken without filling the lip or rim; a spout attached near the bottom is part of the capacity measure.

Liquid measures should be strong enough to hold their shape and not be easily damaged or indented by ordinary use.

Only liquid measures, made of glass may be graduated or used to measure less than the full capacity.

Dry Capacity Measures.

Dry capacity measures must be made of metal, composition or of well dried wood and must be strong enough to withstand ordinary usage.

Wooden measures over one pint must have a metal band around the top.

Measures less than one-half bushel should not be made of wicker work.

Measures one-half bushel and over must have handles.

Dry measures of the capacity of one-half bushel, one peck, one-half peck, one-quarter peck and one quart shall be of cylindrical form.

Dry capacity measures shall have a straight and even bottom, the bottom that is curved upward or downward will not be allowed.

Double-ended measures, that is those with a bottom part of the way up, one side being used for one capacity and the other for another, should not be used.

Dry measures should not be constructed to contain more than one denomination of measure.

The denomination of the measures should be marked on the side in letters at least half an inch high and wide.

Dry measures made of metal may be stamped on the bottom.

Dry struck measures must be of the following interior capacities respectively:

Stricken Dry Capacity Measures.

Capacity in cubic inches, cubic inches.
1 bushel	2150.42
1/2 bushel	1075.21
1 peck	537.60
1/2 peck	268.80
2 quarts	134.40
1 quart	67.2

These measures are declared by law to be the standard measures for fruits, vegetables, and other dry commodities customarily sold by heaped measure, the evident purpose being that such heaped measures shall contain the respective weights established in section 1615 of the statutes.

Dry capacity measures used for measuring commodities where heaped measure is required should have minimum diameters and corresponding depths, with allowable variations as given in the following table:

Dry Capacity Measures.

DIMENSIONS.	Approx. Diam.	Approx. Depth.
1/2 bushel	14 in. x 7 in.	3-16 in.
1 peck	11 in. x 6 1/2 in.	1/4 in.
1/2 peck	8 1/2 in. x 4 1/2 in.	1/4 in.
2 quarts	6 1/2 in. x 3 1/2 in.	1/4 in.
1 quart	5 1/2 in. x 2 1/2 in.	1/4 in.

If full variation is allowed on one dimension, the other dimension should be correct.

One-half bushel baskets or boxes, heaped measure, should contain 1/2 bushel, stricken measure.

One bushel baskets or boxes, heaped measure, should contain 1 1/2 bushels, stricken measure.

These boxes are used stricken full to carry the commodity to market. A box 12 x 14 x 16 inches equals 2.088 cubic inches, stricken full will hold a heaped bushel. The error in dimension on one side should not vary over 1/8 inch.

Measures that do not comply with these specifications must be condemned.

NEGRO HOLD-UP MAN FOUND IN INDIANA

Identified at Seymour by Man Named Denbow, Who Was Robbed on Train Here Early in July.—Chief Appleby Notified.

Through a telegram from the chief of police at Seymour to Chief of Police Appleby, received yesterday afternoon, it is learned that a man by the name of Denbow, who was robbed on a freight train passing through here early last July, had identified the big negro who had held him up. Denbow was "beating" his way in a box car through Janesville, when two men climbed into the car, shoved a gun into his face, and rifled his pockets. The robbers got off the train near the Greek brewery, telling Denbow that if he got off they would shoot him. Denbow left the train at the yards and at once notified the police of what had occurred.

Chief Appleby notified the Seymour police that if Denbow would come back to Janesville and prosecute the case, the sheriff would go and get the negro.

FORESTALL ROBBERY OF DULIN RESIDENCE

Two Men Discovered Prowling About Alderman's Home at Early Hour This Morning.

A possible house-breaking and burglary at the home of Alderman J. J. Dulin was averted this morning by the presence of mind and quick action of Mrs. Dulin. She was awakened a little before one o'clock by the rattling of boards piled against a shed to the rear of the house. Going to a rear window she saw two men, evidently trying to get hold a ladder which was covered with the boards, with the intention of using it to enter a window. She then hastened to the telephone and called the police station. It was then just past the hour for the night man to be there, but fortunately he happened to be on hand, and the patrol wagon and three officers responded. When they arrived on the scene the intended house-breakers were not to be found, evidently being frightened away by the noise of the approaching wagon.

All contributions can be sent direct to the Relief Committee as appointed by the Governor, or direct to State Treasurer Dahl.

"KECKIE" MOLL WILL HE COME BACK?

Madison.—"Keckie" Moll, once touted as the greatest football leader in the West who was dismissed from the University of Wisconsin team for alleged "yellow" playing two years ago, is back this year and is making a desperate fight to land the quarter back position on the Badger team.

Moll, whose ability as a drop kicker and manipulator the forward pass, made him one of the most dreaded men in the West, declares that he was not well at the time of his dismissal from the team. He declares that he can "come back" this season and only desires an opportunity to make those who contemned him reconsider.

Cochi Richards has taken a liking to Moll and is grooming him for the regular quarter back position. He is showing great speed and is an expert as ever in drop kicking and in manipulating the forward pass. As a football leader Moll is unsurpassed. His judgment is always the best and he never loses his head during the during the most critical periods of the game.

Moll's spirit and determination to regain his former prestige are receiving the approval of everyone. He says little and only asks a chance to show what he can do.

Wireless Telegraphy in Meteorology.
Wireless weather reports are now sent every morning from Gibraltar to the meteorological office in London. The dispatch is copied, en route, at the Eiffel tower in Paris and promptly sent to the headquarters of the French meteorological service, which includes it in the daily weather bulletin. The use of wireless telegraphy in meteorology is rapidly growing, despite the discouragements that attended the earlier attempts in this direction, and is clearly destined to greatly facilitate the methods of weather forecasting.

Model Prison Too Expensive.

There has been a model prison in Wuchang, China, but it has turned out to be far too expensive. It was lighted throughout with electricity, and the food given to the prisoners was better than what they got at home, so that a great many became permanent residents. So it has been resolved to reduce the expenditure by a considerable sum monthly, to remove the electric lights, and to withdraw a number of the jailers. For food each prisoner will in future get two bowls of coarse rice, and will also provide his own clothes.

Plea for Suffrage.
Louisville, Ky., Oct. 19.—Delegates to the forty-third annual convention of the National American Woman's Suffrage Association took Louisville by storm today. The women have come from every section of the country, prepared to give to "the cause" the most notable impetus since the inception of the equal franchise movement. The hostesses of the city are taxed to provide accommodations for the visitors and many of them are being entertained in private homes. The program for the five days' session is pronounced the best ever prepared for a convention of the association. There will be reports from each of the delegations representing their respective states. These reports will embody a narration of the progress made during the past year, the plans of campaign found most effective in the different localities and an exchange of ideas through debate.

It is in the number and prominence of the speakers, however, that the present convention promises to surpass all of its predecessors. Heading the list is the Rev. Anna Howard Shaw of Philadelphia, the president of the national organization and the most prominent advocate of equal rights since the days of Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Susan B. Anthony. Others who will be heard at the several sessions include Miss Jane Adams of Chicago, Miss Mary Johnson, the Virginia novelist; Mrs. T. P. O'Connor, wife of the noted Irish journalist and member of parliament; Mrs. Dasha Brockbridge, the Kentucky suffrage leader; Miss M. Carey Thomas, president of Bryn Mawr College; Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English suffrage leader, and Mrs. Caroline Bartlett Crane of Michigan. Though a convention of women and in the cause of women, the fair sex do not intend to monopolize the program. Dr. Harvey M. Wiley, the pure food expert, will be among the speakers, also Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo and Omar Garwood of the Colorado Equal Rights Aid Association. Sen. La Follette of Wisconsin has advised the association that he will be here to deliver an address if his other engagements permit.

Purchasing Power of Gold.
Many people find it difficult to understand how the value of the dollar can vary when one standard weight of gold is fixed by law as constituting a dollar. The answer given in treatises on economics, of course, is that gold is a commodity and, like any other commodity, its value varies according to supply and demand. The most satisfactory explanation, however, is the practical one that the value of the dollar is always measured by what it will buy, and that if prices rise so that a dollar will buy only three-quarters as much at one time as it did at some former time, the value of the dollar has been actually reduced by 25 per cent. A bulletin just issued by the department of commerce and labor, showing relative average wholesale prices of commodities for the years from 1890 to 1910, gives an interesting tabular exhibit of the great variation in prices and in the purchasing power of a dollar's worth of goods that has taken place during those years. The average is based upon the wholesale price of 25 different commodities.

A remarkable court decision in a highly case has been handed down at Perugia, Italy, where Charles Dallori, a tailor, was acquitted of a charge of having two wives on the ground that he has two hearts. Four physicians testified that Dallori has two hearts, and the court at once decided that this was ample reason for him to marry two women.

FINDS LOST SISTER IN FILM SHOW POSE

Romeo and Juliet, in Motion Pictures, is Medium of Uniting Aged Couple.

Many of the people of this city, who are in the habit of attending the local picture houses, will possibly remember the excellent production of Romeo and Juliet, which was posed by the Thimblehouse company and which was shown at one of the theatres a short time ago. An interesting incident in the exhibition of this noted film has been brought to light in Aurora, Ill., when a sister and brother, both old and bent with age, were brought together over the brother's fondness for the film houses. He attended a performance at the theatre there and witnessed the above picture and saw his long lost sister in the role of the nurse. John Stanton, of Aurora, is the brother and Mrs. G. W. Walters of Philadelphia is the sister. He is seventy-three years of age and she is three years older. The aged couple will spend their remaining years together and are both thankful to the Thimblehouse film company for uniting them after such a long separation.

Falling to secure a foothold on the car step as she was boarding a street car on South Main street early last evening, Mrs. J. A. An elderly woman was following close behind the car and she dared not loosen her grip for fear of being thrown in front of it. The motorman and conductor were not aware of the woman's perilous situation until passengers on the rear platform called to them to stop the car. Mrs. Denniston suffered a wrenched shoulder and some bruises, but no serious injury.

SECOND MEETING OF RETAILERS PLANNED

Will Be in Charge of Industrial and Commercial Club—Meeting Last Evening Postponed for Few Days.

Owing to the fact that but a few members of the Retailers' Association made an appearance last evening the meeting had to be postponed and another will be called within a few days. This meeting will be conducted by the Industrial and Commercial club as was planned for last night's meeting, and a great many things of importance will be discussed.

Among the things which will be brought up for consideration will be the adoption of some plan to attract out of town trade. Returning of carfare to those buying a certain amount has been suggested and action of some sort will be taken concerning the proposition in all probability.

Successful "Falth Tea."

A "Falth tea" was held at Swanage, England, in connection with a temperance mission. No provisions were ordered, but those attending were to have faith and trust that the necessary food would be sent in. So generous was the supply that not only was there enough for tea, but a supper was added later in the evening, and the scriptural breakfasts were left over for distribution among the poor.

A Testimonial.

The following testimonial was given to a servant girl: "This is to certify that the bearer has been in my service one year less 11 months. During that time I found her to be diligent at the back door, temperate at her work, prompt at exences, amiable toward young gentlemen, faithful to her sweethearts, and honest when everything was safe under lock and key."

Willing All Should Know.

There were some very candid persons in the time of George II. In 1731 the Gentleman's Magazine announced: "Married, the Rev. Mr. Roger Walmsley of York, about 26 years of age, to a Lincolnshire lady, upward of 80, with whom he is to have £8,000 in money, £300 per annum, and a coach-and-four during his life only."

Reflections of the Mind.

There is no question about it; if you have mean, narrow, ill-humored notions inside your head, they're dead sure to strike through to the surface and stamp your face with ugliness.

T. D. WILLIAMS SPEAKS AT W. C. T. U. MEETING

Mrs. Horwood and Mrs. Miller Chosen as Delegates to State Convention at Milwaukee.

Members of the local W. C. T. U. held their regular meeting at their hall at three o'clock yesterday afternoon. After the devotional service and some routine business had been done, the president Mrs. A. W. Horwood took the chair. Following the opening exercises Rev. T. D. Williams gave the Union a helpful and inspiring talk on, "How to Develop a Moral Enterprise." The first of his points was that it must be born and nurtured in some soul. Next, organization is needed to perpetuate it and then, good and competent leadership. And, finally, the married spirit or blood to baptize the whole is needed. A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Williams.

After the ladies had engaged in parliamentary drill for a little while, and some items of business had been transacted, the meeting adjourned. Mrs. George Miller and Mrs. A. W. Horwood were chosen as delegates to the state convention which meets in Milwaukee, October 26th.

THE THEATERS

MADAME ZEISLER.

Milwaukee Sentinel, Nov. 29, 1908.

A seeming inclination on the part of the audience to cheer; an applause almost wildly enthusiastic, closed the Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler concert in the Pabst theatre last night. Possibly the fame of the past has given Mrs. Zeisler precedence in Milwaukee; more probably the favor in which she was received last night was born of the calm gentleness of her art. It proved an art devoid of the spectacular, free from pose; an art in which the woman seemed lost. And it resulted in a mastery of the piano more effective than the wildest pianist pyrotechnics.

Mrs. Zeisler may be termed a composer's pianist; she seems to merge her individuality with his; she portrays him faithfully. Baltimore News, Jan. 29, 1909.—Those unfortunate who failed to attend night find it difficult to conceive of so great an artist steadily sharpening her insight and perfecting her control, but Mrs. Zeisler's nature is devoid of complacency and full of love for her art and ambition to be worthy. She will therefore strive unceasingly toward her ever-advancing ideal, without swerving one iota from the line of true artistry. Mrs. Zeisler has an uncommonly wide range of moods. Her miniature painting, with its deft touches, is not more exquisite than are her heroic tonal pictures, brilliant and broad. She apprehends, and depicts all moods with equal truth and clarity. There is no field for the critic's office and transparency are as apparent to the public as to musicians. The highest art is unalloyed truth, and that is what one hears from Mrs. Zeisler. The greatest event in musical circles in Janesville in many years is the engagement of Madame Bloomfield Zeisler at Myers Theatre on Tuesday evening, October 31. Seats are now on sale at the box office. Little that is new can be said of Uncle Tom's Cabin. It has pleased two generations of theatre-goers and seems destined to continue indefinitely. Collier's colossal production, which will be the attraction at the Myers Theatre Saturday, matinee and night, is said to be the largest and best dramatic performance of the play seen in years. A monster parade takes place at noon.

"THE GIRL I LOVE" PLEASED AUDIENCE

Victor Morley With Excellent Company Scored Hit in Musical Comedy at Myers Theatre Last Evening.

What proved to be an attraction pleasing in every detail with comedy and music in abundance, was presented by Victor Morley and an excellent cast in the La Salle theatre success, "The Girl I Love," to a large audience at Myers theatre last night. Being an Askia production, fun and song were assured and the clever company failed in its particular to bring out the very best in the play. The chorus was exceptionally comely and sprightly and sang and danced with an excellence that was keenly appreciated. The costuming and stage setting was also a noteworthy part of the attraction last evening and the harmony of the entire color scheme of the scenery and attire of the chorus was especially noteworthy.

With enough of a plot to furnish an opportunity for comedy lines and situations, none of those failed to bring forth an applause of laughter. The plot centered about Billy Phillips, which part was taken by Victor Morley, a young city man who was enjoying the pleasures of the country. He expected a rich uncle who had been led to believe that his nephew was married, which idea was allowed to remain in time and also with the expectancy of a substantial present. The unexpected arrival of "uncle" however, forced everything was arranged complicated affairs and Billy's college chum was forced into taking the part of his wife. Ted Burns, in the latter role, was the best comedy character in the cast, and received hearty applause. "The dancing of Johnny Dove, the colored porter, was also very clever. The leading feminine roles were capably taken by Miss Eleanor Henry, Miss Hazel Drake and Miss Lenora Norvick.

SOMETHING OF LIFE OF OXFORD STUDENT

Prof. Allan B. West Gives Interesting Account to Students at High School This Morning.

Prof. A. B. West, instructor in mathematics at the local high school, addressed the students today in the morning exercises, and in a very interesting fashion described to them the life of a student at Oxford university.

After defining his topic as a "Wise-combin boy at Oxford," he graphically described the life at the university. Oxford, he said, was a distinctly college town, for it contained twenty independent colleges, with their separate faculties, student bodies and buildings. Besides these there was also the famous Oxford university. To the Wisconsin boy or any student approaching its gates, he said, the massive walls and barred windows with their deep enforcements appeared to be more of a prison than an institution of learning. However, on entering the atmosphere changed and you came into fellowship with the educated.

Within the ancient structure was an open rectangular plot around which were built the dormitories. Each floor of the dormitories is under the surveillance of a scout. The life of the student is a very simple one in all ways. He has two rooms, one he calls his "bitter," the other his "budder." Early in the morning he is called by

Doctors' Prescription For Eczema

The most advanced physicians of this country and Europe are now prescribing a wash of wintergreen thymol and other soothing and healing ingredients for the cure of Eczema, Psoriasis and all other forms of skin trouble. This compound is known as the D. D. D. Prescription.

Dr. Holmes, the well known skin specialist, writes: "I am convinced that the D. D. D. Prescription is as much a specific for Eczema as is quinine for a malaria. We have been prescribing the D. D. D. remedy for years."

I can vouch for the D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema and absolutely guarantee that it will take away the itch the instant you apply it.

If you will call at my store I will be glad to let you have a $1.00 bottle on the guarantee that it will cost you nothing unless you find it does the work. And you decide. For that matter a trial bottle for 25 cents ought to be enough absolutely to prove the merits of the remedy.

Drop into my store, anyway, and as I have seen a great many cases of skin trouble, I will give you free pamphlet giving directions for bathing, diet, etc., for all kinds of skin trouble.

Ask for the D. D. D. pamphlet, "Cause and Cure of Skin Disease." Get posted on this wonderful remedy today. J. P. Baker, 123 W. Milwaukee Janesville, Wis.

THE OLD AND THE NEW

THE ACORN OF 63 YEARS AGO

THE ACORN OF TODAY

In 1848, sixty-three years ago, this Acorn Air Tight Cook Stove, entered the family of Mr. Wm. Evenson of Janesville.
At that time it was the finest to be had anywhere.
Day after day, year after year, it served the family well and faithfully, until one year ago, when they decided to get a more modern Acorn Range.
Think of it! For 62 years this stove has seen daily service with practically no repair expense.
AND IT IS NOT WORN OUT YET! It is still in good shape and fit for at least ten years of service.
The top is as true and level as the day it was made. The lids are solid and in almost perfect condition. The inside plates are still sound.
What's the reason?

It isn't because the iron of '48 was better than the iron of today.
The results of scientific study have made it possible to make iron today purer than ever before.
It is simply because the makers of Acorn Stoves decided eighty-one years ago, that not one ounce of scrap iron should ever be used in making Acorns.
That rule has been steadfastly adhered to, and through all these years down to the present day, nothing but the best grades of pure new iron is melted in the Acorn cupolas.
Pure iron, the highest grade of skilled labor, and an endless striving for perfection. There's the whole secret.
"It's the way They're Made."

The Acorn of today is far in advance of the Acorn of 1848.
As to efficiency, convenience and design, there is no comparison.
The Acorn of today has a larger firebox, deeper flues and a vastly improved grate.
It is equipped with a most convenient warming oven.
It has the largest cast iron-porcelain lined reservoir made.
The oven is square and roomy and is lighted in every corner by the Acorn Glass Paneled Oven Door.
The oven door drops lightly and forms a very convenient shelf.

The castings are smooth and easy to keep clean and the nickel is loose—lifts off in an instant.
But, the quality of the iron is the same.
The same high class of skilled labor is still employed in the Acorn factories.
The same keen inspection of every Acorn Stove is in force.
There's the reason Acorns are America's Very Best.
The 1911 Acorns are now on my floor awaiting your inspection. Come in and let me tell you about them.
See the show window and the photograph of the stove of 1848.

(JOURNAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Edgerton, Oct. 10.—Last night the assembly room of the Child high school was the scene of a far-reaching gathering, the occasion being a meeting of the parents of the high school pupils. The purpose of the meeting was to give the parents a definite understanding of what the teaching force is attempting to accomplish. It is an endeavor on the part of the teachers to secure active co-operation from parents by setting forth the methods pursued in conducting the school. Principal Holt is the prime spirit in the undertaking and the masterly address he delivered elicited close attention throughout the meeting. The meeting gave the parents an opportunity to determine the meaning of the report concerning what has been done in the past six weeks' work in the educational line. The meeting proved one of great interest to all and it is possible that these meetings will be continued in the future.

INDIGESTION, SOURNESS, DYSPEPSIA AND ALL STOMACH MISERY GOES.

Your Out-of-Order Stomach Feels Fine in Five Minutes After Taking a Little Diaphepsin.

There would not be a case of indigestion here if readers who are subject to stomach trouble knew the tremendous anti-ferment and digestive virtues contained in Diaphepsin. This harmless preparation will digest a heavy meal without the slightest fuss or discomfort, and relieves the sourest stomach in five minutes, besides overcoming all foul, nauseous odors from the breath.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on each 50-cent case of Diaphepsin, then you will readily understand why this promptly cures indigestion and removes such symptoms as heartburn, a foaming like a jump of gas in the stomach, belching of food and brucetation of undigested food, water brash, nausea, headache, biliousness and many other bad symptoms; and, besides you will not need laxatives to keep your stomach, liver and intestines clean and fresh.

If your stomach is sour and full of gas, or your food doesn't digest, and your meals don't seem to fit, why not get a 50-cent case from your druggist and make life worth living? Absolute relief from stomach misery and perfect digestion of anything you eat is sure to follow five minutes after, and besides, one case is sufficient to cure a whole family of such trouble.

Surely, a harmless, inexpensive preparation like Diaphepsin, which will always either at daytime or during night, relieve your stomach misery and digest your meals, is about as handy and valuable a thing as you could have in the house.

HEART AND HOME TALKS

Some Christmas Gifts for the Housewife.

IF you have a housekeeper on your Christmas list who does her own work, or who wishes to lighten the work of the home, why not give her for your Christmas remembrance, some one of the many clever, up-to-date helpers for housework? So many wonderful things are being invented to do away with the drudgery of housework, that a properly appointed kitchen nowadays has quite the air of a scientific workshop. And if a woman has all these modern appliances, housework really becomes an easy task.

A fireless cooker is a great help in simplifying the cooking problem. It not only saves work, but it saves fuel. And food cooked this way is more delicious than by the old-time methods. Its latest rival is the paper-bag cooker, which is even better than the fireless cooker, for it not only also saves fuel, but it eliminates all washing of pots and pans, one of the most unpleasant features of dishwashing.

Another labor and money saver in the kitchen is a butter maker—it can hardly be called a churn, since there is no churning. The cream is simply poured on an asbestos pad in a pan, and in three hours the butter is there. That's all there is to it. There is no mechanism, very little in the way of apparatus to clean, and absolutely no work. One is not only sure of butter made in an absolutely sanitary fashion; but when butter is forty and fifty cents a pound, one can affect quite a saving.

One scarcely needs to sing the praises of a vacuum cleaner. But almost any housewife would sing a psalm of joy to get one as a Christmas gift. It is the easiest, quickest, and cleanest way to sweep imaginable. And it has a feature not always considered. It is invaluable in the home where there is a shut-in or an invalid. For, sweep as carefully as one will, there is dust and noise to distress the sick person; and though where there is permanent invalidism, there should be rugs small enough to take out and shake, this is not always possible. So that the vacuum cleaner is a blessing in such a home.

A gas iron, is a gift almost any housewife would welcome, or an electric iron either, if electricity is in the house. But most houses nowadays have gas. These irons save many steps, and consequently, time; and they can be operated all day at a cost of five cents, so they are not expensive.

Almost all women who live in the country make their own bread, and many a city woman does also; so that the gift of a bread-maker would be most welcome to many. These bread-makers do away with the old-time process of kneading the bread by hand, a long and tiresome operation when much bread is made. In a few minutes, the mixer accomplishes the same results, so that it is a great boon to the busy housewife.

But there are scores of such helps. A walk through the house-furnishing section of any of the big stores, or a study of store catalogues will suggest many gifts sure to delight the practical housekeeper.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THIS other day I was asked to write something which I had no idea how to write.

I asked four people what to say. Three of them answered, "I'd say something like this"—and then made some vague and indefinite suggestion. The fourth took a paper and pencil, and wrote his suggestion in definite, finished form.

The fourth is an unusually successful young business man. I wonder how much of his success is owed to the habit which this little incident shows his possessors—the habit of definiteness.

I believe that the habit of definiteness is one of the most common weaknesses that keep men and women from accomplishing things.

It is so much easier to think and talk and plan and live in "glittering generalities," to make up one's mind to say "something like this," to plan undertakings in vague and sketchy outlines, than to be definite and accurate in one's thoughts and words and plans.

Of course, the indefinite and general idea must come first, and the definite and concrete afterwards, but the trouble with many is that they never get beyond that first stage.

The indefinite idea is the powder—the concrete plan or thought is the shot. And the reason so many of us make much noise, but never hit the mark, is because we have too much powder, but no bullets in our guns.

I know a man with such a passion for definiteness that he always meets any general statement by saying, "Such as," which is his way of demanding a concrete example of the generality. He says that half the time the person who makes the general statement cannot give any concrete example.

When I was out driving the other day, I passed two farms where produce was offered for sale.

On the sign at one farm was printed:

"ALL KINDS OF FARM PRODUCE FOR SALE."

At the other place was a sign which read:

"FOR SALE—FARM PRODUCE."

FRESH EGGS

CELERY

SQUASHES

CHICKEN

LARDERS

LETTUCE."

The broad generalization of the first sign made no appeal to me.

The definiteness of the second reminded me that I wanted some celery and brought out my pocket book.

Train yourself to habits of definite thought and statement, to definiteness in your desires and aims, and to the making of definite concrete plans, and you will have immeasurably sharpened the tools with which you are seeking to carve out a successful life.

The KITCHEN CABINET

I would be true, for there are those who trust me; I would be pure, for there are those who care; I would be strong, for there is much to suffer; I would be brave, for there is much to dare.

I would be friend of all—the foe, the friendless; I would be giving and forget the gift; I would be humble, for I know my weakness; I would look up—and laugh—and love—and lift.

—Howard Arnold Walters.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Use a teaspoonful of vinegar in the water in which a tough stew or fowl is cooked. It will soften the fibers of the meat and thus make it more tender. If meat is prohibited from the diet, one may have eggs, rice, macaroni, nuts, peas and beans. From these any number of good, nourishing dishes may be prepared.

During the dearth of potatoes and their high price, our culinary architects remember that rice, hominy, wheat, cornmeal and macaroni are all richer in food values than the Irish potato. Fresh vegetables may be accompanied with bread crumbs, which make an acceptable potato substitute.

Starch foods must be well done and not overdone. Rice may lose its value by over cooking and macaroni is most unwholesome when underdone.

When insufficiently cooked the starch grains have not burst and softened. When overdone the water draws out the nourishment.

Rice cooked in rapidly boiling water, drained when soft and set into a hot oven, may be served with bits of butter dotted over the top, just as one would serve mashed potatoes.

Scrambled eggs mixed with a cupful of buttered crumbs makes a dish that is both sustaining and appetizing.

Corn and Bacon.—This is sometimes called a squaw dish as the Indians are very fond of preparing it. Cut bacon in thin slices and cook until crisp, pour off about half of the fat from a quart of corn, either fresh or canned. Stir until the corn is cooked through; longer if fresh corn is used, and serve hot.

CONTEST EDITOR HAS MANY ANSWERS THAT SHOW MUCH THOUGHT

Attention Being Paid to the Present Question How to Best Prepare for the Winter's Supplies.

During the winter months the ants, the squirrels, even the rabbits, lay in a store of food for the long, cold winter. These dumb creatures know that during the long, dreary days of December, January, February and March they will need food and consequently they are taught by instinct to prepare. The fowls of the air are able to fly away to the southland and there find food in plenty.

In the old days when stores were not equipped as they are now, before railroads spanned the continent, telephones were invented and other modern conveniences installed, it was the custom of housewives to prepare for winter by laying in great stores of supplies. The present contest of The Gazette is with a view of finding if this custom prevails today. If not, what takes its place?

Does the busy housewife depend upon her grocer and baker for all the supplies for the table during the winter or does she lay in an extra supply herself. Does she bake the pies her grandmothers used at the opening of the winter to last for weeks? Does she bake the huge chicken pie for Thanksgiving that is served on the table at various times until New Year? Does she have her cellar filled with vegetables and materials for meals that will keep or does she order from day to day who needs order from the telephone? Which would she prefer to do. Which would she like best—the old fashioned way or the new methods?

Think this over and send your views to the Feature Editor. Write on one side of the paper only and address to the Feature Editor so it will be received by November 15th. Several answers have already been received that show care and thought to the question.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING.

When It Is Desirable to Bake Bread in the Home Oven.
(By Alice E. Whitaker.)

Even the peas in a pod are not actually alike and the science called cookery produces a wonderful variety from the same materials. I watched a dainty teacher of cookery make a little loaf of bread as sweet as herself and when she passed it round among her audience of fashionable ladies they each took a slice and found it good.

Again I watched the busy baker at a state almshouse as he mixed his five barrels of flour in a huge mass and covered the dough for rising. I went into the bread room and saw the great loaves fall into slices beneath the two handed knife which a strong man wielded all day long cutting the slices as fast as the clock ticks. This bread was good too.

I do not believe that every housewife should bake all the bread eaten by her family if she lives where good bread can be secured from a sanitary, well inspected bakery. But it is an imposition on the children to compel them to eat baker's bread. In fact while they are at the bread and butter age, when slices after slices disappears like magic, it seems to be the mother's duty to have bread baked in the house with but now and then a baker's loaf in the emergency. It is true that even today, with all the improvements in bakeries, the best home made bread is the most satisfactory and nourishing.

To make bread in the best and quickest way follow what is called the short method, for this is the usual practice now. This means five hours from mixing to taking the loaf from the oven. The short period allowed prevents danger of the fermentation going beyond the sweet stage and passing into the condition which gives that abomination in food called sour bread.

It is true that certain pleasant flavors produced by using less yeast and giving longer time to fermentation are held in the quick process bread yet this is the method by which millers test their flour. It is a safe way because the bread can be watched all the time as it cannot if allowed to stand over night. The novice in bread making can scarcely fail if she follows this rule and it is not true that bread made in this way tastes of the yeast as some old conservative cooks insist.

For one loaf and one small pan of rolls put into the mixing bowl one cup of scalded milk, one cup of boiling water, one rounded tablespoon of butter or lard or equal parts of each and one rounded teaspoon of sugar. When lukewarm add one yeast cake dissolved in one-quarter cup of lukewarm water and mix with about six cups of bread flour, not the kind recommended for both pastry and bread for each requires a distinct kind of flour.

Knead on the board until smooth and elastic when pressed with the hand. Return to the bowl previously rubbed slightly with lard. Wet the hand and pass over the dough then cover and set where it will keep at a temperature of about 68 degrees. One good way to secure this is to set the bowl in a pan of water heated to about 100 degrees. Every second cook water, one rounded thermometer and thus keep watch of temperatures.

When the dough has doubled in bulk, which it should in three hours, shape into one loaf and a pan of rolls which are more crusty, healthful and acceptable if made quite small. Cover with a paprika or cheese cloth and let the loaf rise until doubled in size and the rolls are a little more than twice their original bulk. Bake in an oven, rather hot at first, to check the rising, then reduce the heat and bake more slowly in order to cook the interior of the loaf last the center of the crumb will carry yeast cells into the stomach to cause fermentation there and hence indigestion. Bread "done rare" is not fit to eat. The loaf should have a light brown evenly baked crust on all sides.

THE FASHIONABLE POLO COAT.

New York.—A reigning favorite of the coming Winter will be the long, soft, wooly, comfy, polo coat,—well fitted to keep out the cold blast. These pretty, warm wraps are displayed in a variety of styles and color combinations—touches of bright red, gold, tan, white or plaid, on dark blue, brown, or gray, being the most usual.

The cuffs, collars, revers and pocket flaps generally show the color of the reverse side of the blanket from which the coat is cut, the darker side appearing in the exterior of the garment.

The coat shown in the illustration is of plain dark blue, with deep cuffs broad collar and revers of scarlet. A scarlet and blue mottled button fastener is fastened on the left side. It is distinguished by the addition of a little vest of dark blue, fastened with small buttons. In the open space between the wide revers. Other styles show wide belts and deep pockets, but all are very comfortable in cut, with absolutely straight lines. And a suggestion of roundness and worn with the new soft felt hat, the polo coat offers a stunning "rough and ready" outfit, for motor wear, or other outdoor sports.

DAILY DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

LETTERS FROM READERS.

The author of these hints has given advice on diet and health, publicly, in this way, for more than ten years and has had the satisfaction of knowing that many of his readers have been very greatly benefited who at first attached little importance to the suggestions. He has received many encouraging letters from readers of this series, expressing appreciation. A merchant, seventy-seven, has changed his diet, gradually, till he eats only two or three simple and wholesome foods, twice a day, with great benefit, and expects to prolong his life ten years. A lawyer, who got no relief from the ordinary treatment, dropped breakfast, adopted a simpler diet and fasted 20 days, with great benefit. He regrets that diet is not given a larger place in medical practice generally, since it is admitted to be the chief cause of 80 per cent. of our ills. More benefit would be derived if it were not for the difficulty of changing long-established habits.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

By A. W. MACY.

THE ORIGIN OF PINS AND PIN MONEY.

For a long time after pins were invented, in the fourteenth century, they were used only by the wealthy. It cost so much to manufacture them that the poor and even the middle classes could not afford them. Each pin was made by filing one end of a wire of the proper length to a point, and then twisting a piece of finer wire about the other end. The complete process is said to have involved about thirteen different operations, requiring as many different persons. In 1797 Timothy Harris of England succeeded in making the first solid-headed pin. In 1824 an American named Wright made a great improvement over Harris' method, and in 1831 John I. Howe of New York City invented a machine for making pins as we now have them. At one period, when pins were expensive luxuries, it was customary to give a young lady a certain amount on her marriage for "pin money." The custom disappeared long ago, but the term "pin money" remains.

HOW OLD PEOPLE

May Prolong Their Lives

At an advanced age waste is more rapid than repair. The organs act more slowly and less effectively than in youth. The circulation is poor, the blood thin and watery, the appetite poor and digestion weak.

We want to say to every aged person in this vicinity that Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic (without oil), will prolong life. It creates an appetite, aids digestion and makes good blood. In this natural manner Vinol rebuilds waste and replaces weakness with strength, giving new life to the worn system.

If people in this vicinity only realized how Vinol invigorates old people we would not be able to supply the demand.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

Thought Today

BY MRS. ROBERT M. LIPALSTIZ

SCHOOL EXCEPTIONS.

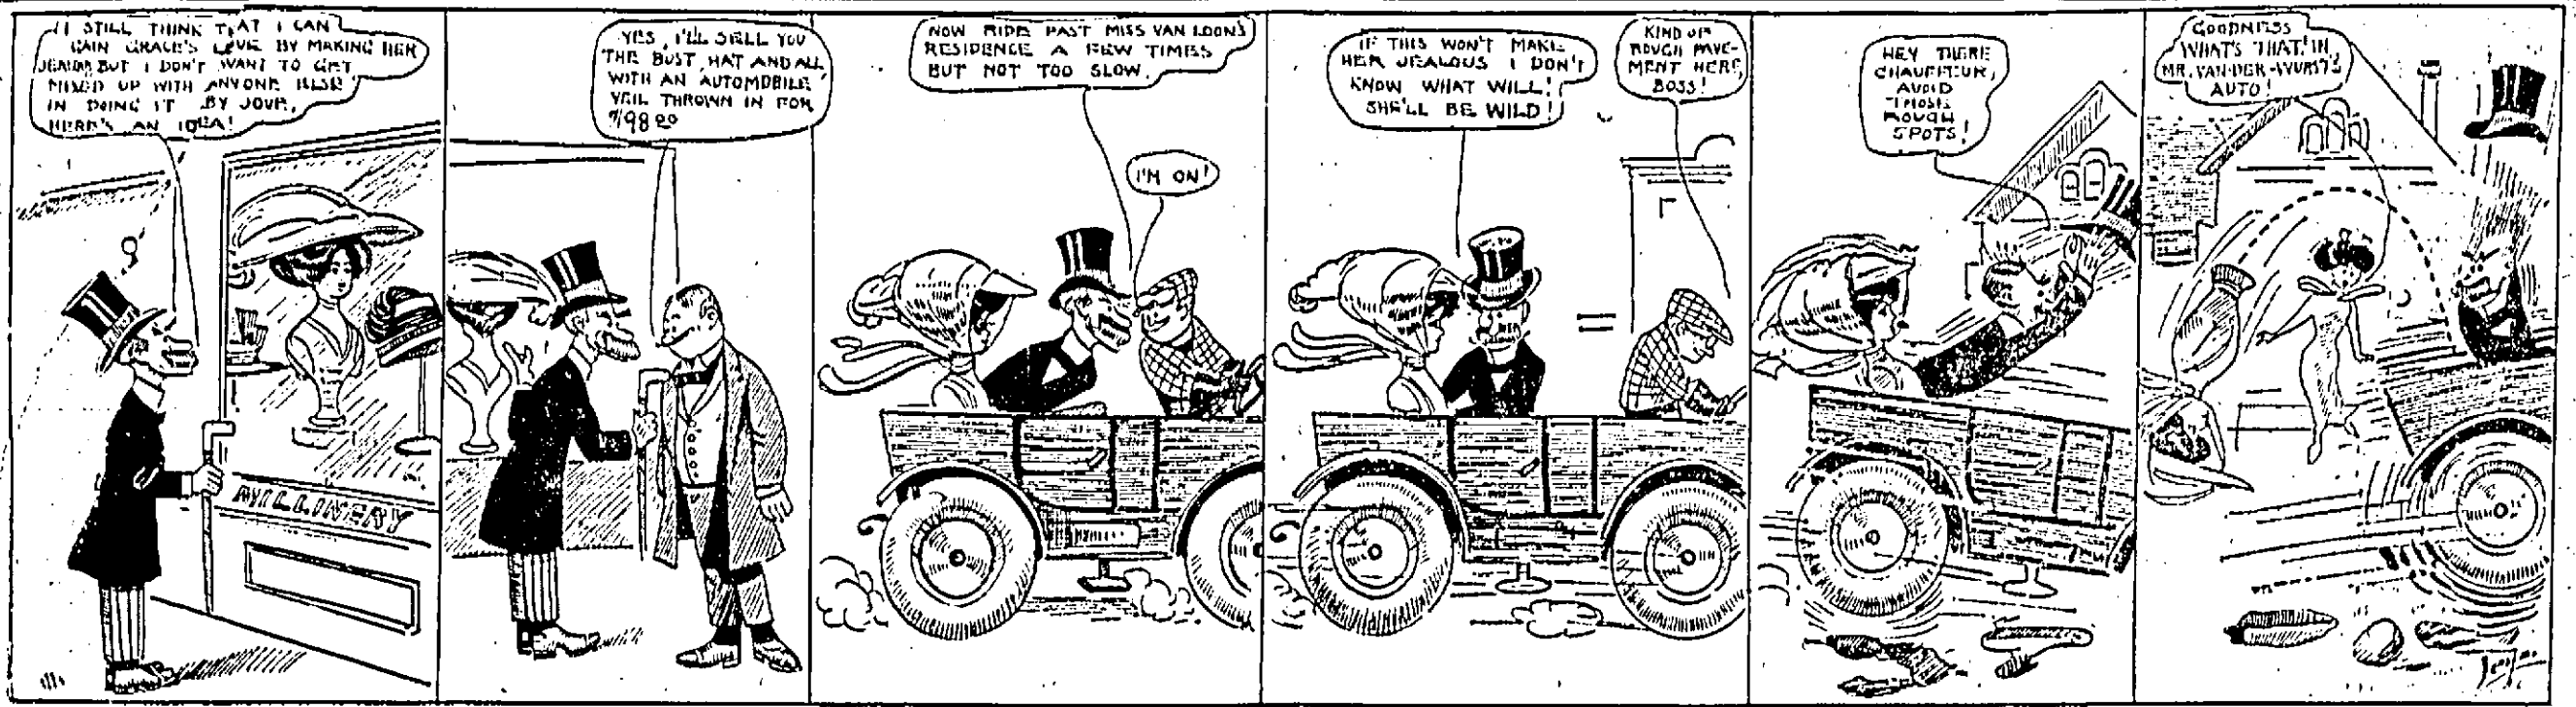

THIS summer over, vacation past, the school doors have opened again. I am jealous of the school because it absorbs so many of these days with our growing children and I may be somewhat prejudiced in my suggestions. But if a child just past the admission age is a little backward in mind or body, or is in any way precocious, I should say, "Better be at home another year, out of doors, unconfined, gathering strength that will more than compensate in after years for any school training."

Or, if there is an older child who is not strong constitutionally, but grows pale and nervous under school pressure, is it not dangerous to ignore nature's warning? Or one whose memory (book-learning) capacity is limited, who has assimilated the essential, elementary knowledge, but who even with pathetically conscientious planning cannot master algebra, physics, and Latin. Is it not better for such a child to take up some work for which he had aptitude,—music, domestic science, agriculture,—rather than to be dulled and discouraged by a fruitless effort to complete a prescribed course of study?

Then there are those "tired and sick of school," capable but unwilling. They have been coaxed, hired, compelled. If a year's work at something that has interest and value for them does not awaken an appreciation of an education, nothing will.

We parents must not be sentimental, rather rational. Sometimes we appear to be slaves to the school, and lose sight of its ultimate purpose. If our children do not measure up to the standard, we mistakenly think they will fail in life itself, and we sacrifice their physical health and best brain development to the one idea that they must get through school.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Perhaps Grace would have been won if it wasn't for that rough pavement.

The Girl from His Town

Galorey said cheerfully: "Oh, Dan's got lots of spirit."

Looking up from the contemplation of her flowers to her friend, the duchess murmured with a charming smile: "I don't hit it off very well with Americans, Gordon."

His color rising, Galorey returned: "I think you'll have to let Dan go, Lily!"

For a second she thought so herself; and they both started when the voice of the young man himself was heard in the next room.

"Good-by, I'll let you make your peace, Lily," and Gordon passed Dan in the drawing-room in leaving, and thought the boy's face was a study.

The duchess held out her hand to Dan as he came across the room.

"Come here," she called agreeably. "Every one has gone, thank heaven! I've been waiting for you for an age. Let's talk it all over."

"Just what I've come back to do."

There had been royalty at the musicale, and the hostess spoke of her guests and their approval, mentioning one by one the names of the great. It might have impressed the ear of a man more than was the Montana copper king's son. "I did so want you to meet the Bishop of London," she said. "But nobody could find you. You look most awfully well, Dan," and with the orchids she held, she touched his hand.

He was so direct, so incapable of anything but the honest truth, that Dan didn't know deceit when he saw it, and his lady spoke so naturally that he thought for a moment her rudeness had been unintentional. Perhaps she hadn't really meant—Everybody in her set was rude, gross and rude, but she could be deliciously gracious, and was so now.

"Don't you think it went off well?" Dan said that it had been ripping and no mistake.

"I like Lady Calvorn; she's bully, and I liked the king. He spoke to me as if he had known me for a year."

She began to be a little more at her ease.

"I didn't care much for the fiddling, but Lotty Lane made up for all the rest," said Dan. "Wasn't she great?"

"Rather!" The duchess' tone was so warm that he asked frankly: "Well, why didn't you speak to her, Lily?"

And the directness caught her unprepared. The fault to the actress by which she had planned to teach him a lesson failed to give her the bravado she found she needed to meet Dan's question. For part of the transaction, deliberate, unkind, seemed worse and more serious through his headlong act, when he had driven off, braving her, in the motor of an actress. She didn't dare to be jealous.

"Wasn't it too dreadful?" she murmured. "Do you think she noticed it too awfully? I was just about to go up and speak to her when the prima minister—"

Dan interrupted the duchess. He blushed for her.

"Never mind, Lily." His tone had in it something of benevolence. "If you really didn't mean to be mean—"

She was enchanted by her easy victory. "It was abominable."

"Yes," he accepted, "it was just that! I was mortified. You wouldn't treat a beggar so. But she's got too much sense to care."

Eager to do the duchess justice, even though he was little by little being emancipated, he was all the more determined to be fair to her.

"It was too sweet of her not to mind. I dare say her check helped to soothe her feelings," the woman said.

"You don't know her," he replied quietly. "She wouldn't touch a cent."

The duchess exclaimed in horror: "Then she did mind."

And he turned slowly: "She's eaten and drunk with kings, and if the king hadn't gone so early you can bet he would have set the fashion differently. Let's drop the question. She sent you back your check, and I delightfully, but it had never been useful for him to exert his forces, he had never had need to show his mettle. Now he felt at those words:

"You might rest your weary feet!"

how, with all his heart, he longed that the dancer should rest those lovely tired little feet of hers, far away from any call of the public, far away on some lovely shore which the hymns called the coral strand. As he gazed at her mobile, sensitive face, whose eyes had seen the world, and whose lips—Dan's thoughts changed here with a great pang, and the close of all his meditations was: "Gosh, she ought to rest!"

The boy walked briskly back of the scenes toward the little door, behind which, as he tapped, he hoped with all his heart to hear her voice bid him come in. But there were other voices in the room. He rattled the door knob and Lotty Lane herself called to him without opening the door:

"Will you go, please, Mr. Blair? I can't see anyone tonight."

He had nothing to do but to go—to grind his heel as he turned—to swear deeply against Pontowski. His late ecstasy was turned to gall. The theater seemed horrible to him: the chattering of the chorus girls, their giggles, their laughter as he passed the little groups, all seemed weird and infernal, and everything became an object of irritation.

As he went blindly out of the theater he struck his arm against a piece of stage fittings and the blow was sharp and stinging, but he was glad of the hurt.

Without, in the street, Dan took his place with the other men and waited, a bitter taste in his mouth and anger in his breast, waited until Lotty Lane flattered down, followed by Pontowski, and the two drove away.

The young man could have gone after, running behind the motor, but there was a taxicab at hand; he jumped in it, ordering the man to follow the car to the Savoy. There the boy had the pleasure of seeing Mrs. Lane enter the hotel, Pontowski with her—had the anguish of seeing them both go up in the lift to her apartments.

When Dan came to himself he heard the chimes of St. Martin's ring out eleven. He then remembered for the first time that he had promised to dine alone at home with the Duchess of Breakwater.

"Gosh, Lily will be wild!"

In spite of the lateness of the hour he hurried to Park Lane. The familiar face of the man servant who let him in blurred before the young man's eyes. Her grace was out at the theater? Blair would wait then, and he went into the small drawing room, quiet, empty, reposeful, with a fire across the andirons, for the evening was damp and cool. Still dazed by his jealous, passionate emotions, he glanced about the room, chose a long leather sofa, and stretching out his length, fell asleep. There in the window he slept profoundly, waking suddenly to find that he was not alone. Across the room the Duchess of Breakwater stood by the table; she was in evening dress, her cloak and gloves on the chair at her side. She laughed softly and the man to whom she laughed, on whom she smiled, was Lord Galorey.

Blair raised himself up on the sofa without making any noise, and he saw Galorey take the woman in his arms. The sight didn't make the fiance angry. He realized instantly that he wanted to believe that it was true, and as there was nothing theatrical in the young westerner, he sprang up, along so much a part of his nature that the first words that came to his lips was a phrase in vogue.

"Look who's here!" he cried, and came blithely forward, his head clear, his lips smiling.

The duchess gave a little scream and Dan lunged up to the two people and held his hand frankly out to the lady.

"That's all right, Lily! Go right on, Gordon, please. Only I had to let you know when I waked up! Only fair: I guess I must have been asleep quite a while."

The duchess of Breakwater shrugged. "I don't know what you dreamed," she said acidly, "if you were asleep."

"Well, it was a very pretty dream," the boy returned, "and showed what a stupid ass I've been to think I couldn't have dreamed it when I was awake."

This Kidney Remedy Gives Immediate Relief

In 1907 and 1908, I was taken very sick with kidney trouble and being afraid of Bright's Disease, went to a prominent physician at Libertyville, Iowa. After doctoring for some time without cure or benefit, I began the use of Swamp-Root and found immediate relief, which urged me to continue the use of the medicine.

After taking several bottles which I bought at J. C. Clark's Drug Store, in Fairfield, I became a well man and can honestly say that I have never had any signs of Bright's Disease or a return of my kidney trouble.

I am so grateful toward Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root that I never hesitate to recommend it to any one I know who is suffering with kidney trouble.

Yours very truly,

Open Country.

When worn out by the noise and palpitating life of the city or town, try restoring the balance of temper and optimism by running away for a quiet day in the country. Leave all cares, worries, doubts, fears carefully locked in a Pandora box, and if possible leave the key where it will never again be found. Tuck under one arm a favorite book and under the other a simple lunch, board a train or car and ask the conductor to let you off near a wood or by the side of a stream. Imagine yourself a true child of nature or an Indian maiden trading the wilderness when the land was young. Forget the appointment with the dressmaker or the possibility of a new library carpet, just be lazy and dream in the sun-spotted shade, for summer is here and is willing to give of her store of plenty to a frayed and eagle-world. One day out in the open is worth a whole course of treatment by a nerve specialist.

A City Cat in the Country.

"We took our cat to the country with us this summer," said the flat dweller just back from vacation, "and that cat's education was expanded thereby. Puss has never been anywhere out of our apartment except once when he fell from the fourth story window to an awning below. Our apartment is about 60 feet long over all. For the first few days that he enjoyed the unknown freedom of a big yard up in the country the cat puzzled us by his antics. He would make a short run of 50 feet or so and then stop abruptly and look worriedly at the lawn ahead of him. Finally we guessed what was the matter. That cat didn't care to run too far for fear he would fall off the lawn."

Lightning's Freak.

A somewhat remarkable thing occurred in Herk County, Ireland, during a recent thunderstorm. While Miss Julia Browne was sitting near the door of her house, preparing to give up some crochet work at which she had been engaged, a flash of lightning sent the needle flying across the kitchen out of her hand, while the girl herself was uninjured.

Death and Sleep.

Sleep is an instinctive need for rest; natural death in like manner is the manifestation of an instinctive want, and the instinct of death is often seen in very old people, who die as easily and quietly as children fall asleep.—The Hospital.

Before Allowing an Operation

Please Read These Two Letters.

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will prove how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before. Then after all that suffering Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored her health.

HERE IS HER OWN STATEMENT.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement—I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for several months without much result, and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise every woman who is afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. Orville Rock, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Mich.

"There never was a worse case." Rockport, Ind.—"There never was a worse case of woman's ill than mine, and I cannot begin to tell you what I suffered. For over two years I was not able to do anything. I was in bed for a month and the doctor said nothing but an operation would cure me. My father suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; so I please him I took it, and I improved wonderfully, so I am able to travel, ride horseback, take long rides and never feel any ill effects from it. I can only ask other suffering women to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation."—Mrs. Margaret Meredith, R. F. D. No. 3, Rockport, Ind.

We will pay a handsome reward to any person who will prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful—or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the letters are published without their permission, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ill. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

QUITE PROMISING.

The Collector—I saw young Scadda and he made another promise to pay in the near future.

The Merchant—I consider him to be about the most promising young man in the city.

NOT SERIOUS.

Mr. Ankitt—Do you think marriage is a failure?

Mrs. De Vurnay—No; merely a temporary embarrassment.

The Blessed One.

The unrepentant stranger lay on the sidewalk breathing heavily and groaning. Two teeth were missing, his eyes were marked and his nose was bleeding.

"Who can he be?" said the crowd again and again.

"I guess he was some peacemaker," suggested the ambulance surgeon, surveying the wreckage.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Gazette, Oct. 19, 1871. From the North.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 19.—General Leaman, arriving from Fort Garry last night, reports intense excitement prevailing at Winnipeg on account of the recent gold discovery at Lake Shabondawin. Specimens of dust, nuggets and quartz have been found and were brought to Winnipeg, and hundreds of persons are rushing to the new gold fields. Lake Shabondawin is a short distance from Silver Lake.

The Madison Democrat says: "There was a rumor in our city last evening that four were entertained for the safety of Miss Anna Hantrotter, the talented singer, who has resided in Chicago for some time past. We are now glad to state that her brother has heard from her. The fair and accomplished child of Madison came out of the Chicago conflagration without a ruffle, and will visit her friends here in a few days. Will it be necessary to take up a contribution to any Lena some new ruffles? She should not suffer for the want of clothing."

At Reedsburg, Sauk county, a bear sought admission to their public schools and afterwards curled up and went to sleep on the doorstep of one of their citizens' homes. It was slaughtered.

Gen. C. C. Washburn and Hon. J. H. Donahoe, the rival candidates for the governorship, arrived this morning and are registered at the Myra House.

A heavy frost covered the ground this morning.

A child fell from the second story window of the Russ house yesterday afternoon, but sustained no serious injuries.

Rev. J. H. Temple will preach at All Souls' church on Sunday next, both morning and evening.

WEARY'S TRIBUTE.

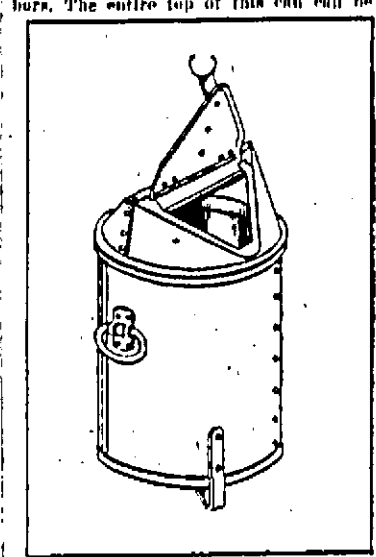

Held the rusty hobo,
As he sat on the garden wall,
And ate and ate
From the farmhouse plate,
"Tis de farmer dat feeds us all!"

Tis de farmer.

SANITARY GARBAGE CAN

Hinged Lid Can't Stand Open and Fits Tight When Closed.

Anyone who has read the philippian against flies that have been published this summer will recall the inevitable warning to keep the lid on the garbage can. A Virginia man has invented a sanitary garbage can on which the lid is always closed, unless held open, and it fits tight when it is closed. The consequence is that the flies, unable to crawl into the can, go next door and prey the neighbors. The entire top of this can can be removed when it is necessary to clean it thoroughly, but under normal conditions the top remains fast and the garbage is disposed in and out through a triangular opening covered by a hinged flap. The outward movement of this flap is limited so that it cannot be held back and forgotten by a servant, thus leaving the can open, but it will drop down into place when released. Another feature of this receptacle is that it is rat and dog proof.

Church's Trade Mark.

I was visiting the city of Louisville, Ky., says a correspondent. One day my father took myself and little brother, age four, out for a walk. We passed many churches, and I noticed that all the churches had crosses on them. I then asked my father why all the churches had crosses on them, when my four-year-old brother spoke up and said: "Why, don't you know that is their trade mark?"

What She Was Doing.

One day a neighbor borrowed our hatchet. Our little five-year-old boy kept wondering who she wanted with the hatchet. Presently he came running in and exclaimed, "Mamma, I know what Mrs. Smith wanted with the hatchet. She is down in the cellar hatching kindling with it."

Pathetic Pilgrimage.

The usual pathetic and painful scenes were witnessed in Paris the other day, when more than a thousand invalids assembled at the station to begin the thirty-ninth pilgrimage to Lourdes. The platform, covered with stretchers and filled with nurses, reminded one of a vast hospital ward. From noon till sundown there was a continuous procession of poor creatures, afflicted with every variety of human malady, the features of many of these sufferers being illuminated by fervent faith in the miraculous virtues of the Lourdes waters. The departure of the "white" train in the afternoon was particularly touching, because it conveyed to Lourdes the invalids whose condition is the most hopeless. The "white" train carried 275 patients, reclining in special carriages.

Remedy for Hives.

Rhubarb and soda may be used with good effect. A despoiled spoonful should be taken every two or three hours. The itching may be relieved by applying a lotion consisting of equal parts of spirits of camphor, water of ammonia and alcohol. This lotion may be used as required.
